PRESS RELEASE

Financière Marjos Announces New Project Strategy focused on AI Data Centers; Name Change to Future Infra; Half-Year Financial Results

The Euronext Paris-listed company plans to invest in the acquisition, development and operation of AI data centers in Europe, North America and Asia-Pacific, initially in partnership with WhiteFiber, Inc.

Paris, France — 2 October, 2026 — Financière Marjos SCA (Euronext Paris: FINM) (the "Company") today announced a planned strategic repositioning to focus on investing in the acquisition, development and operation of artificial-intelligence (AI) data centers in Europe, North America and the Asia-Pacific region. In connection with the contemplated new strategy, the Company intends to change its corporate name to "Future Infra SCA", while retaining its existing Euronext Paris ticker symbol (FINM). The change of name is subject to shareholder approval at the Company's next shareholders' meeting and the Company will keep the market informed in this respect.

The Company intends to pursue the contemplated strategy initially as a joint-venture partner of WhiteFiber, Inc. (Nasdaq: WYFI), a vertically integrated developer and owner-operator of AI data center infrastructure. Financière Marjos and WhiteFiber are sister companies under the common control of their controlling shareholder, Bit Digital, Inc. (Nasdaq: BTBT). Through one or more joint-venture arrangements, Financière Marjos (Future Infra) expects to leverage WhiteFiber's established data center platform and capabilities, including site sourcing, acquisition, development, operations and project financing, as well as its actionable pipeline of opportunities. The Company expects this relationship to provide access to strategic projects on economically viable terms, during its growth phase. The Company anticipates sourcing its initial portfolio of data center projects from WhiteFiber and believes that this unique relationship would result in rapid operational ramp-up and near-term deployment of capital.

In addition, and on a secondary basis to its joint-venture partnership with WhiteFiber, the Company intends to develop its own proprietary project pipeline in Europe and other global markets including North America, Japan, Singapore and Australia. The Company's planned strategy would emphasise power-secured assets, including the conversion of existing industrial properties into AI and high-performance-computing data center campuses, and the build-out of its own capabilities over time.

Additionally, Financière Marjos (Future Infra) may pursue acquisitions of, or structured investments in, other parts of the AI infrastructure value chain, including but not limited to:

(i) powered land and sites with secured or prospective grid connections, with a view to developing them into AI data center campuses, including through phased development over time; and

(ii) AI data center companies and projects, through full-stack structured capital solutions, which may include structured or participating debt, preferred equity or hybrid instruments.

These investments are intended to be structured as part of an operating strategy with a general commercial and industrial purpose. This would be reflected in the related governance rights, in the Company's involvement in developing and operating the underlying assets, and in its long-term holding horizon.

Through this strategy, Financière Marjos (Future Infra) intends to establish itself as a leading European listed platform focused on the development, ownership and financing of digital infrastructure supporting the growth of AI.

Contemplated Timeline and Financing

The Company intends to put in place the executive management team described below. Under that team's leadership, operations under the new strategy are expected to begin as soon as practicable after (and subject to) the AMF's decision referred to below.

Subject to that decision and to market conditions, the Company currently intends to launch an equity capital raise in the first quarter of 2027 to fund its development strategy.

The implementation of the contemplated strategy would require equity and debt financing in amounts that are very significant relative to the Company's current financial structure over the coming years. As of June 30, 2026, the Company had negative shareholders' equity of €(1,215,007) and financial debt of €1,104,077, and it has no operations. Where a financing is made in equity, existing shareholders who would not participate may be significantly diluted.

The terms and conditions of these financings have not yet been definitively determined. The Company will keep the market informed as they are finalised.

It is not contemplated to carry out any changes to the Company's legal structure at this stage. In the course of deploying its business, the Company may, depending on its operational needs, strengthen its management team and initiate recruitment processes.

Executive Management Team

The Company's executive management team would comprise:

Sam Tabar — Chief Executive Officer (to be appointed as co-Gérant)
Bryan Bullett — Chief Strategy and Capital Markets Officer
Erke Huang — Chief Financial Officer
Philippe Gellman — Co-Gérant and Head of France Institutional and Investor Relations

The Company contemplates, from time to time, to enter into advisory-services and other agreements with its affiliates and third parties for the provision of certain services while the Company is in its ramp-up phase.

The new strategy is subject to a decision by the French financial markets authority (the Autorité des marchés financiers, or "AMF") confirming that no mandatory tender offer is required as a result of the foregoing. Bit Digital has filed a request to this end with the AMF and will keep the market updated in this respect.

"We are pleased to announce a clear new direction and identity as Future Infra. Partnering with WhiteFiber would give the Company immediate access to a proven data center platform and project pipeline, while we would build our own capabilities and proprietary global pipeline over time. We believe this would position Future Infra to participate in one of the most significant infrastructure opportunities of our time," said Sam Tabar*.*

Publication of Audited Half-Year Financial Results
